Rosehill House Hotel in Burnley

Rosehill House was built in 1856, for a wealthy cotton mill owner, Adam Dugdale. The house went through several changes of ownership, including the mayor of Burnley, Mr Sam Taylor and was also occupied by the home guard during the Second World War.

Rosehill House was then converted into a hotel in 1963. Many of the elaborate features of the original decor have been retained, including a number of beautifully ornate ceilings, which give the hotel a unique charm and character.

The Rosehill Hotel enjoys an enviable reputation for its peerless style and welcoming atmosphere. The ideal place to relax, the Rosehill will take you back into a bygone era and make you feel like the personal guest of a genial host.

This hotel is approximately 20 minutes away from our showroom in Rawtenstall.

It is also only 20 minutes away from Citheroe Castle, which is a very popular tourist attraction.

There is also the UK's number one Mill Store within a 30 minute drive from the Rosehill House Hotel. Boundary Mill Stores is the largest quality mill store of its kind in the UK. Founded in 1983, their philosophy is to offer quality branded goods at discount prices up to 75% off rrp. Departments include ladieswear, menswear, shoes, luggage, bags, jewellery, accessories, cookshop, bathshop, textiles, china, glass, gifts, cards, books, dvds, arts & crafts, perfume & cosmetics and lighting.

For something a bit closer to our showroom and something which has a bit more history of Rossendale you can visit the Helmshore Mills Textile museum which is approximately 15 minutes from our showroom. They have a shop and a cafe available to the public and also offer a service where they take you on a tour through the mill and show you exactly how cloth would have been made in the eighteenth century.

I hope this helps and if you require any more information, please do not hesitate to contact me on 01706 211830.
